

A student checks the voltage output on a battery pack in the electric car.

All of the electric components of the car are student built and maintained. In this photo, students brainstorm methods for increasing efficiency of the car.